science -- PM is the ultimate guide to our high-tech life photography book celebrating the nomadic lifestyle and community of vanlife through interviews, essential advice living on the road, and more than 200 photos of tiny road homes. Inspired by the blog and Instagram account, Van Diaries is an inspiring and detailed look into the world of rolling homes built and occupied by a new generation of modern nomads: a range of professionals and creatives who have ditched conventional houses for the freedom of the road and the beauty of the outdoors. More than 200 photographs feature the vanlifers, their pets, and their converted vans and buses--VWs, Sprinters, Toyotas, and more--with the interiors uniquely customized and decorated for their work and hobbies, as well as the stunning natural locations that are the movement's inspiration. Interviews and narrative captions share the stories of these nomads and how they decide to pursue vanlife, and provide practical tips and inspiration on downsizing, finding and converting your vehicle, and working and living on the road. Vintage camper trailers are a unique symbol of midcentury America that resonates with many people.
This book introduces many of those people, along with the trailers they've lovingly maintained or restored. It includes hundreds of photographs of everything from fancy and comfortable trailers designed for glamping (glamorous camping), to trailers handed down through families across generations, and even entrepreneurs who have transformed their trailers into vending booths. Paul Lacitinola enjoys everything about vintage camper trailers, including rescuing, restoring, and rallying. In 2011, he began publishing the U.S.-based magazine for collectors, restorers, and admirers of American-made camper trailers, Vintage Camper Trailers, which now has thousands of subscribers in more than a dozen different countries. He lives in Elverta, California. The Essential Guide to Driving North, Central and South America. This guide is intended for the rambler who is driving a vehicle from North to South America, vice versa, or in between; camping with his/her vehicle; modifying his/her vehicle to enhance safety, off-road travel, and/or camping utilization; searching for a quick, valuable, and portable information tool. The decision to drive the Americas can be daunting, requiring both a healthy dose of courage and preparation. This book is the ultimate travel source to provide you with the courage and organization to embark on an unforgettable adventure. Written by the editor of ramblewriter.com, this guide includes over 50 links to informative websites and recommended travel gear, vehicle modifications listings, detailed border crossing instructions, country-by-country information, tips for traveling with a dog, and advice from other adventurers who have traveled North, Central, and South America by vehicle. FIELD & STREAM, America's largest outdoor sports magazine, celebrates the outdoor experience with great stories, compelling photography, and sound advice while honoring the traditions hunters and fishermen have passed down for generations. The full inside story of the iconic Ford Transit by an acknowledged expert The stories featured in Baja California Adventures take place during a span of almost sixty years of travel in the rugged, parched, yet hauntingly attractive peninsula. The author kept detailed notes on most of his then fleshed out this skeleton in a narrative that places reader in the role of participant in the adventure. Thus, feels the bite of the 4WD tires into the desert sand, newly packed by the moisture of a quick-moving thunderstorm author describes the excitement of finding Indian petroglyph arrowheads, or clay ollas in remote canyons. Because M Tiscareo is also a pilot, many of the trips included here involve mention of the special immigration rules for private in tourists. Finally, there are Baja adventures in the pine granite fortress that is the Sierra de San Pedro Martir in northern part of the peninsula. Here, the author joined a veteran Bajeos in hoof-and-boot or horse-assisted explorations. In short, this book should be inspiration to readers who want to visit Baja California, particularly the tourist-trod destinations. Armchair travelers will derive vicarious pleasure without the effort of going there themselves. What do Henry Ford, Thomas Edison, Mae W

Howard Hughes, John Madden, the Partridge Family, Ken Kesey, The Who, and Barbie have in common? Each had a home on wheels—be it an old converted school bus, a motorhome, an RV cruiser, or elegant house car. These celebrity motorhomes are only the frosting on the cake in Douglas Keister's entertaining and informative new book Mobile Mansions. From the eclectic to the exquisite, the luxurious to the modest, Keister's incredible photography showcases the history and diversity of some of the most historic and lovingly restored RVs on the road today. Keister documents an amazing range of vehicles, including small camp cars from the 1920s, house cars from the 1930s, campers from the 1950s and finally modern-day motorhomes that first emerged in the 1960s. Well-known brands like Winnebago, GMC, and Travco are featured as well as one-of-a-kind vehicles like the Lamsted Kamp built by Anheuser Busch, the Zeppelin House Car, and Buckminster Fuller's Dymaxion car. Step inside a wide variety of motorhomes, from diminutive camp cars to diesel-belching lumbering leviathans complete with saunas, balconies, and gourmet kitchens. Mobile Mansions details this fascinating chapter of America's history with lively text, lush full-page photographs, rare vintage photographs and offers a complete history of the recreational vehicle. better. The Ford owner's magazine. Book Summary of Run or Might Be Somebody By Ephraim Romesberg The book covers a span of over 70 years starting with the author as a small boy who was the last of 11 children living on a farm during the great depression and ends with the author as a 74 year old man, who still runs ultra distant marathons. In the first chapter, the author presents stories and anecdotes, often in a humorous way, to describe some of the joys and hardships of growing up in a large family during the great depression.
Compared to today, life was very different then with no television, very few radios, no computers, no running water in the house (except in the pantry where there was a hand pump), and very few toys or luxuries of any kind. Also, and perhaps more significantly, kids, for the most part, were given chores and did not have time to get into trouble. There were no drug gangs, and no boredom. Being the youngest in the family and somewhat sickly, the author was to some extent given a little slack on farm chores. Even so, he had daily chores to do starting from a very early age such as milking cows, driving the old model T truck, fetching the cows, cleaning stables, feeding livestock, driving a tractor, and helping wherever was needed. The book describes the one room school house that all kids in the area attended at that time. The author had to quit such a school while in third grade to work on the farm when his father died leaving the family without any money or food. His mother completed school through eighth grade which was all that most people considered necessary.

those days especially for women. So there was little or no pressure from the parents to go to school after that. As a result, the three oldest boys in the family never went past eighth grade. There were other reasons to stay home and the most important one was they had no decent clothing. The book tells about the Author's mother removing the white strip from an old pair of band pants and one of the three boys who completed high school, then removing all the little white threads so that he could wear the pants to school. He had no decent shoes so he added home made soles to the bottom of a pair of his work shoes by attaching them with roof nails so that he could make the long four mile walk to the school. After several trips the nails poked through the bottom of the shoes and wore holes in his feet. Because of that and the lure of the upcoming hunting season, and the need to work the farm, he quit school after only a month or so. Except for the three oldest boys, all of the kids completed high school and several went on to college. The book describes such things as making hay the old fashioned way, husking corn by hand, hoeing corn and then picking rocks while resting, butchering a pig, delivering baby pigs and calves, threshing to separate grain from the straw, and the author's Mom squirting milk straight from the cow's tit at cats and grandkids.. Also described are how the young boys in the family learned to handle a team of horses when they were only 10 years old, how one of the boys accidentally cut off his little sister's ear, how an uncle lost his leg to the stump puller, how the author when he was only eight years old, tried to explain to a preacher how to use the out house and the Sears Roebuck catalog which was used instead of toilet paper. Also described, and a little more on the lighter side, one of the authors sisters claimed that you havent lived until you run barefoot through a cow pasture and felt the warmth of cow patty ooze up between your toes. The early chapters describe the authors time in the US Navy where he was sick every time the ship left the dock. Hunting stories tell of deer hunting with more failures than successes. step outside of your comfort zone in order to live a life by passion. Join a 22-year-old professional mountain bike racer and his girlfriend as they enter into the world of entrepreneurship in order to keep their dreams and passions alive while they transition from "college life" into the real world. Following their hearts, these two dreamers set out to chase the largest professional mountain bike series in North America during the summer of 2014. The epic journey has them living out of a used van for 90 days as they drive 15,000 miles on an almost inexistent budget. All the while they struggle to run several business and philanthropic endeavors from their rolling office in order to fulfill the vision they see for their lives. This book illustrates the devastating heartbreak of defeat and the heavenly thrill of triumph available to those who dedicate their lives to a purpose greater than themselves. Let these young adventurers inspire you as they lay it all on the line to prove, firsthand, what VanLife is all about. in the church? Do you know that Hitler professed to be Christian? Ever been conned into giving money to the church only to be left penniless and alone? Go with Joanna on her own spiritual journey, battling the dictators in her life and finding some of the keys to emotional healing. See how surrender to a just and loving God can expose the errors of your thinking and bring you to an understanding of truth. What is truth? Pontius Pilate asked Jesus this question. Do you like to know the answer? Joanna was born in Connecticut. Married in 1977, she moved to Rhode Island. In 1979 she began attending Al-anon meetings which changed the course of her life. The next seven years took her on an incredible journey of spiritual, mental, and emotional healing. Divorced with three small sons, she headed to Tulsa OK in 1986 to attend Oral Roberts University. Although people in Tulsa have many valid spiritual experiences, they were very often emotionally bankrupt. AA and Al-anon were not promoted. Joanna's years in recovery in Rhode Island, prepared her for the frustration she found in Tulsa attempting to walk out on calling. She was ordained through Ministers for Christ Assembly of Churches and spent eight years ministering to the homeless. She has recorded two albums: "The Dance" and "Heed My Call". She lives in Sand Springs Oklahoma with her new husband and teen-age son. Graduated from college, her other boys are grown and married and live in Fort Worth Texas. Learn about the entire history of America's best-selling vehicle: the Ford F-Series truck. When Henry Ford first started manufacturing Model Ts more than 100 years ago, he didn't really have any sort of pickup or truck configuration in mind. However, enterprising people and businesses were modifying those early chassis for commercial use, and it didn't take long for Ford to figure out that there was a demand for a truck application of the Model T. Soon, Ford was making its own configurations for commercial use, through third-party body companies and eventually by Ford itself with the Model TT. From these humble beginnings, Ford stumbled onto the basis for one of the most popular vehicles ever built: the Ford F-Series pickup truck. In Ford F-Series Trucks: 1948–Present, authors Jimmy Dinsmore and James Halderman thoroughly dissect the history of Ford F-Series pickup trucks as seen from a technical viewpoint. Fully covered are all the options, chassis specifications, running changes, and the evolution of these trucks, as they transition from postwar utilitarian vehicles to the best-selling luxury family cruisers seen today. Not only are Ford trucks the best-selling trucks, they are the best-selling vehicle of any category, cars included. This book will thrill truck aficionados and Ford historians alike, as it covers the first F-Series models (1948–1952), the ever-popular second-generation Series models (1953–1956), the popular Bumpside (1967–1972), and all the way through the remarkable technology of what is now the 14th generation of the F-Series. The truck's role in American society changed dramatically from the 1960s through the 1980s, with the rise of off-roaders, the van of the 1970s and minivan revolution of the 1980s, the popularization of the SUV as family car and the diversification of the pickup truck into multiple forms and sizes. This comprehensive reference book follows the form of the annual popular volumes on American cars. For each year, it provides an industry overview and, for each manufacturer, an up-to-date
